The storyline is based on actual events of 1985.

Salyut-7, the unmanned Soviet space station, was orbiting Earth when it suddenly stopped responding to signals from Ground Control. The fall of the station, pride of the soviet science and space industry, would not only damage the image of the country, but also bring about tragedy, as well as the loss of human lives. To prevent a catastrophe, astronauts will need to reach the station and identify the cause of the breakdown. However, no one has ever docked with an uncontrolled space station in space before. To this day, this remains the most technically complicated mission in the history of space navigation.

Kapuscinski lauded to the skies by John Le Carré and Gabriel Garcia Marquez, as a legend.

Warsaw, 1975.

Kapuscinski (43) is a brilliant veteran journalist, an idealist and a friend of lost causes and revolutions.

At the Polish Press Agency, he convinces his boss to send him to Angola where a bloody civil war has broken out on the eve of the country's independence. He embarks on a seemingly suicidal road trip into the heart of the civil war. There, he witnesses once again the dirty reality of war and discovers a sense of helplessness previously unknown to him. Angola will change him forever: it was a reporter that left Poland, but it was a writer that returned.

In the early 1920s, Georges Laffont (Romain Duris), traumatized by his experience of the war in the trenches, decides to leave everything behind and travel to West Africa, into the vast territories of Upper Volta in the company of Diofo, artist and survivor of the Great War like him. From village to village, Georges makes use of Diofo's talents as a griot (african storyteller) to recruit villagers as labour for plantations in Ghana. But this adventure leads him nowhere, and he decides to return to Paris where his brother Marcel (Grégory Gadebois), an invalid veteran, lives with their mother. After the war, life kept going without Georges, and he now desperately tries to find his place within a family that he selfishly left behind. With the help of Hélène (Céline Sallette), a sign language teacher with whom he will have a tumultuous relationship, he will finally attempt to heal the wounds. Both his family's and his own.
