He convinces his boss , at the Polish Press Agency, to send him to Angola where a bloody civil war broke out on the eve of its independence. He embarks on a seemingly suicidal road trip into the heart of the civil war. There, he witnesses once again the dirty reality of war and discovers a sense of helplessness previously unknown. « NOTHING SHORT OF A MIRACLE » THE HOLLYWOOD REPORTER
« IMPRESSIVE » VARIETY

My Life As A Courgette is a stop-motion animation feature film.

This animation technique is the same used in cartoons: just as with animated sketches, the puppets are filmed frame by frame. Between each take, the puppets are repositioned ever so slightly to give the illusion of movement.

The refinement of the gestures, the fluidity of the movements, and the subtlety of an expression - all created from puppets that are immobile when the shot is taken (!) – are determined by the quality of the animation (and the animators).

In My Life As A Courgette, the puppets are about 25cm/10in. high, and were handcrafted combining several materials (latex foam for the hair, silicone for the arms, resin for the face, fabric for the hand-sewn clothing) wrapped around an articulated skeleton adapted to the morphology of each character.

The puppets were then placed on the stage sets – sized-down models manufactured to scale – and lit by the director of photography before the animator takes over.

THE HOLLYWOOD REPORTER

Tamara is an almost forty-year-old woman suffering from mental disability left alone by her brother. Despite her new situation, she continues with her daily routine, even if her life is rapidly thrown into disarray. One day, Tamara's fascination with ladybugs leads her to stray away from her neighborhood. Then she finds a baby girl who seems to be all alone. Well-meaning but without any regard for the consequences, she decides to take her. Mrs. Meche, an old woman who lives alone in the same district discovers the baby in Tamara's house and becomes rapidly involved. The film depicts the story of these two women who have become faded in their loneliness and how they will find in each other a space where, rather than being outcasts, they feel finally needed.
